

Preparing for the New

ADA Accessibility Guidelines

July 8th or 23rd, 2010

Learn, Earn and Get Ready!

Cumming is excited to offer this informative seminar that will provide you insightful information on how significant federal changes to the ADA will soon affect California.

How will you benefit?

Seminar attendees are provided certificates to fulfill SB 1608 - the mandatory ADA training required of California architects. In addition, AIA members receive 2.5 HSW learning units.

At the conclusion of this seminar, you will have a thorough understanding of:

- The agencies that regulate the ADA and how they have created these new regulations.
- The ways in which these new regulations will be more stringent than the California Building Code; how they extend accessibility into sectors not previously regulated by minimum construction standards.
- When the new rules apply and how to bring your projects into compliance.

PRESENTER:

Mark Anderson

Mark Anderson is an architect, certified plans examiner, certified access specialist (CASp) and founding member of the Certified Access Specialist Institute (CASI). His extensive experience in facility assessment, transition planning, code consulting and construction management provide critical assistance in accessibility to owners and designers alike. He has provided accessibility services across the West Coast and is currently the principle accessibility consultant in review of the $600 million construction program at L.A. City College.

Who should attend?
